Technical View

- Since the past six trading sessions, the benchmark index Nifty has been trading in a narrow range, highlighting a phase of consolidation. On Thursday, the index opened with an upside gap near the upper boundary of this range, coinciding with the 20-day EMA, but failed to sustain momentum above this level, leading to a mild correction and a marginally negative close.
- Currently 23,830–23,850 is expected to act as a key resistance area for the index. Until this hurdle is decisively breached, the market is likely to remain in a phase of consolidation. A sustained breakout above 23,850 could trigger further upside momentum, paving the way for a move towards the 23,980–24,900 zone On the downside, a break below 23,500 may weaken sentiment and drag the index towards the 23,370–23,350 support band.

Technical View

- On the weekly expiry day, the index began the session on a firm footing with a gap-up opening. However, post the initial uptick, profit booking emerged and remained dominant through the day, limiting further upside. Notably, the index has been consolidating within a narrow band over the past 8 sessions.
- Currently, the zone of 75,850–75,900 is expected to act as a key resistance area for the index. Until this hurdle is decisively breached, the market is likely to remain in a phase of consolidation. On the downside, a break below 74,600 may weaken sentiment and drag the index towards the 74,250–74,200 support band.

Chart

Technical View

- The banking benchmark index, Bank Nifty, has also been trading in a narrow range since the last couple of trading sessions. On Thursday, the index opened with an upside gap, but it failed to sustain at higher levels and thereafter witnessed a correction.
- Currently, 53,950-54,000 zone is likely to act as a crucial resistance area for the index. Unless this hurdle is convincingly crossed, the market is expected to remain in a consolidation phase with a negative bias. On the downside, a breach below 53,000 may dampen sentiment and could lead to further weakness, dragging the index towards the 52,450–52,400 support zone.
